

BAYLOR BUSINESS

review

VOLUME 29 NO. 2

A Highly ^(p)4 Intentional Balance | ERIC KRELL

Benjamin Franklin once said, "Tell me and I forget. Teach me and I remember. Involve me and I learn."

In this issue of the Baylor Business Review, we focus on the faculty of the Hankamer School of Business. Our faculty members are charged with more than just teaching students—they involve students by providing interactive learning with an ethical foundation in a Christian environment. Our faculty members also provide thought leadership by producing research that earns publication in top journals and inspires change outside of academia.

You will be introduced to a few of our faculty members and gain insight into the world of teaching from Bill Thomas, a Master Teacher with 40 years of teaching experience. You will also learn about the McBride Fellowship program, which offers collaboration among faculty and international doctoral students.

You will read about departments within the business school that not only focus on the current education of our students, but also prepare them for life after graduation by offering professional development activities. You will also read about how Entrepreneurship faculty members provide unforgettable international learning experiences for students through the Baylor in the Caribbean program.

We hope you learn more about the faculty of Hankamer, who continue to provide an outstanding education for our future business leaders while imparting some of life's lessons along the way.
